Introducing Ross C. Miller New Editor of Pine Cone

With the arrival in Carmel next Monday, October 1, of Ross C. Miller, The Pine Cone will formally pass into the hands of a new editor. Transferral of the interest of Perry Newberry to Mr. Miller was consummated several weeks ago, but severing of Mr. Miller's professional and business connections in Bakersfield have delayed his arrival until this date. Mr. Newberry will continue to act as associate editor of the Pine Cone, and Randal Cockburn will continue as partner and business manager with the new editor, having been associated for two years with Mr. Newberry in this capacity.

For the past fifteen years Mr. Miller has been managing editor of The Bakersfield Californian, and his association with the paper as city editor and reporter dates back to 1914. His first newspaper experience as a lad was in the weekly field in Iowa. He recalls that one of his first duties was to attend the arrival of "the 5:15" at the village station to note arrivals and departures, after which he returned to the print shop and "set" his notes directly into type without intervention of pencil, typewriter or linotype.

In his early manhood, Mr. Miller was for several years a member of various California stock companies, playing juvenile leads in such plays as "The Devil," "When We Were Twenty-One," and other favorites of that day. He was for a time a member of a company directed by George Barbieri, who was to become a celebrated Broadway and motion picture actor. Returning to the newspaper field in San Francisco, Mr. Miller was a feature writer on The San Francisco Chronicle, sports editor of The Salt Lake Telegram, real estate editor of The Los Angeles Examiner, and city editor of the San Jose Mercury-Herald, in which city he was also proprietor of a weekly paper for a time. He has published numerous short stories and poems in magazines of national circulation.

Under Mr. Miller's association with The Californian, the publisher of which is Alfred Harrell, the paper has become known as the leading publication of the San Joaquin Valley, surpassed by no sheet in a city of its size in California, and comparing favorably with the metropolitan dailies.

A desire to live in Carmel and the realization of every good newspaperman's dream of owning his own paper were responsible for Miller's decision to purchase a half-interest in The Pine Cone. He chose this paper after careful consideration of the Pacific Coast field as offering best scope for his determination to operate a unique and interesting publication.

Thelma B. Miller, wife of the new editor, is also associated with the Pine Cone as reporter and feature writer, having preceded her husband to the village by several weeks. Mrs. Miller is also a veteran newspaper writer, being one of the few women in California ever to have served in an editorial capacity. After serving an apprenticeship on the woman's page of The Californian she was for a short period city editor of that paper, when she was promoted to a position created for her as feature writer. Later she was a staff writer for the Long Beach Press-Telegram editing a page devoted to music, the theater and art activities. As freelance writer and sponsor of various state-wide and local publicity campaigns her writings have appeared in all of the outstanding daily papers in California, and in some eastern publications. Her outstanding work has been the publication of a voluminous regional history of Kern County, which is recognized as a standard reference work.

The Carmel home of the Millers is at Eleventh and Dolores, in the farmhouse, where Mrs. Miller's mother, Mrs. J. A. Bernard makes her home with them. The family circle is completed by a small black Pekinese and six Persian cats.

Delsarte Pioneer Succumbs in Carmel

Death came to Mrs. Genevive Astley, of Carmel, last Friday morning after failing health during the past six months. Her advanced age of 79 years found her without sufficient strength to overcome an attack of lobar pneumonia, complicated by a head injury sustained from a fall.

She and her husband, Norman Astley, now in his 83rd year, came here some years ago and took up residence on north Monte Verde street just inside the Pebble Beach fence. Her increasing deafness limited her intimacy to a few close friends, and among them she was esteemed as a philosopher and a reader of world-wide literature. She will be remembered by many as the white-haired little woman who used to read outside on the library balcony.

Two books written by her were outstanding in their field, under her maiden name of Genevive Stebbins, "The Delsarte System of Expression," and "Genevive Stebbins' System of Physical Training." These were published in the 90s. Her studies in this country and in France had made her a pioneer in such activities in the United States, and besides introducing the Delsarte movement over here and dancing as soloists with an important New York musical group, she conducted a normal school for Delsarte teachers.

Famed Artists For Winter Music Season

Four outstanding musical events are scheduled for Carmel this season, as a result of an executive meeting of the Carmel Music society, held at the home of Mrs. James Parker. Season tickets will go on sale next Monday at the Denny-Watrous Gallery.

First event of the season will be a concert on October 29 of the Don Cossack male chorus. On February 2, Joseph Hoffman, world famous pianist, will be presented. A joint recital by Igor Stravinsky, composer-pianist, and Alexander Dushkin, violinist, is scheduled for February 15. The season will close on March 23 with a concert by the Budapest String Quartet.

Officers Elected By School Student Body

With one hundred per cent of the students from grades four to eight voting, the annual election of student body officers at Sunset school was effected Wednesday with the following results: Homer Levinson, president; Bob Farley, vice president; Lee Van Atta, business manager. No result was announced in the office of secretary, as a revote on this office was to be held too late for inclusion in this week's issue. The candidates are: Jane Millis, Jane Ellen Parker, Roe Marie Mattimore and Kathryn Hamm.

Music and Social Hour for Woman's Club Next Monday

Welcoming its members at the opening of the new season with a musical program and social hour, the Carmel Woman's club will hold its first meeting next Monday afternoon at the Girl Scout house at Lincoln and Sixth. Following a short business meeting at 2:30, at which Mrs. H. S. Nye, president, will officiate, Mrs. Carlo S. Morbio of San Francisco will furnish the entire program. Well known in club circles of the bay region, Mrs. Morbio will present groups of dramatic songs, in costume. For the occasion a special piano will be supplied by Miss Margaret Lial of Sherman, Clay & Company, Monterey. Tea will be served after the music.

Following the opening meeting the next event on the club's October calendar will be the first gathering of the book section, on Wednesday morning, October 3, when Mrs. H. S. Nye will review "Poetry, its Appreciation and Enjoyment," by Louis Untermeyer and Carter Davidson.

At the October 17 meeting of the book section, Thomas Craven's much-discussed "Modern Art" will be reviewed by Mrs. James K. Lynch. All section meetings except those of the bridge section are held at 10 o'clock in the morning, and all save those of the garden section meet at the Girl Scout house.

Garden section meetings are held in various of Carmel's lovely gardens. The home of Mrs. Kent Clark at San Antonio and Ocean will be the scene of the first of these sessions, Thursday, October 4, when Clyde Stocking, San Jose rose specialist, will speak on rose culture and exhibit roses. The meeting of October 18 will be held at the home of Mrs. E. H. Yocum, on Mission between Ninth and Tenth, when Mrs. C. H. Lowell will speak on fuchsias.

Mrs. Willis G. White will give a resume of current world events on Wednesday morning, October 10, at the first meeting of the current events section. At the October 24 meeting Mrs. Karl G. Rendtorff will speak on "Nationalism and Internationalism."

The bridge section meetings will be held the second and fourth Mondays of the month, October 8 and 22, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the afternoon at cards closing with serving of tea.

Famous Artists to Celebrate At Bal Masque Tomorrow Nite

"Not at Home" is the sign hung out by Carmel artists until after the Bal Masque of tomorrow night at Hotel Del Monte when the Carmel Art Association and its hundreds of guests from up and down the coast will gather for their first annual hi-jinks. Elaborate preparations for costumes, decorations and entertainment have been made for the revel, and none but selected bearers of invitations may pass the sacred portals of this continental celebration staged in true bohemian style.

Declaring that this is the one night of the year for western artist, Armin Hansen, chairman of the Art Association went on to say, "We are sparing no pains to make the Bal Masque a high spot in California jamborees. When I say that I mean from the nine o'clock opening dance to the last trumpet blast at broad daylight announcing the end of the party. Nobody will be permitted to enter without complete costume and mask, and a committee will be at the door to enforce this order."

When questioned as to what he meant by complete, Hansen smiled and admitted that some of the costumes might not be much on quantity but would be remarkable works of art from all aspects.

Invitations have been sent to internationally famous persons from San Diego to Seattle, many of whom have signified their acceptance and announced that costumes will be the least of their troubles. "A smile goes a long way," remarked a picture star, while another promised to come covered with blushes. Still another prominent cinema actress boldly told of her plan to come wrapped in thought.

Promptly at midnight will come the signal for unmasking, followed by the stage show that will lose none of its audience as it progresses. Table reservations have been very heavy and prospective guests must act at once to get inside the dining room. Holders of invitations in Carmel may exchange them for tickets at $2.50 a person at Stanford's Drug Store, and must give their invitation numbers when making their table reservations.

Girl Scouts Beach Party Held at Point

Hiking from school to the home of Miss Winifred Stillwell on Carmel Point, Girls Scouts of Troop No. 1 enjoyed an outing on the beach Wednesday afternoon at their regular meeting. Craft work has been organized for the season, and 22 members of the troop are busy at their customary activities under the direction of their leaders, Mrs. Millard A. Klein, captain, Mrs. Frank Hutton and Miss Stillwell, lieutenants.

Troop No. 2, of which Mrs. Ralph Coote is captain, was scheduled to hold its first meeting today.

Smoking Out a Gunman? No Just Burning Ammunition

Quelling of a fire which threatened destruction of the home of R. H. (Curly) Gallant early Sunday morning was seriously hampered by a barrage of shots which met the volunteer smoke-eaters. The fireworks which was said to resemble erratic machine-gun fire, was not an arsenal in the hands of a desperate gun-man, as the firemen first thought, but was merely Curley's 1200 rounds of heavy stored and light rifle and shot-gun ammunition going up in smoke.

Household equipment, clothing, and even worse, according to the owner, his collection of firearms, were destroyed to the extent of about $750 in the fire which was easily extinguished after the shooting ceased.

Noise of the explosion was Gallant's first warning of the fire, which started apparently from spontaneous combustion in the cupboard where the ammunition was stored.

Mrs. Gallant and the couple's small daughter were spending the night with friends and hence escaped what might have been serious consequences.

New Hospital Equipment Here For Opening Early Next Month

Opening of the enlarged Grace Deere Velle Clinic as a general hospital following $8,000 worth of remodeling and installation of equipment is expected early next month according to clinic officials. The name of the new institution will be the Monterey Peninsula Community Hospital, to be operated at cost to patients under an open medical staff.

A surgical wing has replaced the earlier administrative section on the main floor and the maternity department will be on the upper level, both furnished with auxiliary departments offering modern facilities. Equipment is now arriving from the east as well as from the discontinued Carmel Hospital, the latter regarded as one of the outstanding small hospitals of the state.

Under supervision of Guy Koepp, Carmel architect, the reconstruction has gone ahead rapidly with funds subscribed in the drive of last spring when a total of nearly $15,000 was realized. The uncertainty as to transfer of control of the new enterprise from the trustees of the Velle Clinic to the new general hospital group has recently been settled and practically the entire sum donated by several hundred peninsula individuals completely released for immediate use.

Superintendent will be Mrs. Dixie E. Gosrow, recently assistant superintendent of the Stanford University Hospital in San Francisco, under direction of Dr. R. B. Seem. A graduate of the Stanford School of Nursing, for a number of years she acted as one of the admitting officers in the Out Patient department of Dr. Seem's hospital. During the past year she acted as supervisor of that department in which there was a daily average of 500 persons coming in for treatment, and a staff of about 120 which included physicians, force of clerical workers, nurses and the like.

Albert di Gioia will be laboratory technician, Miss Marie Rasmussen will continue as bookkeeper and Miss Grace Hobson her assistant.

if he were under influence of liquor. Gray, however, signed no certificate at the time.

Wermuth then sought Judge Wood for advice and was directed to take Buttermore to the Monterey jail overnight following his inability to raise bail.

then sworn in and said that while Chief of Police Gus Englund was he thought Buttermore might have had a drink he doubted if he were under the influence of liquor.

The court set October 12 as date for the jury trial, and in the meanwhile Buttermore was released without bail on his own recognizance. Each side will produce a number of witnesses in what will be the first jury trial here in nearly a year.

Fatal Wreck On Old Coast Road

Another life was claimed on the old coast road last Sunday when George Turner, of Merced, was killed in a motor wreck due to skidding and plunging down a steep bank, some miles south of Carmel near Rainbow Lodge.

With him were his son and a friend named Carl Overdale, both escaped with minor injuries.

Few Traffic Cases Come Before Judge

Speeding cases comprise the bulk of traffic infractions coming before City Judge George Wood this week.

Marie Hathaway Short, of Carmel, was tagged on the 11th, for exceeding a local limit and will have a delayed hearing shortly. Fred Lee, of Redwood City, was cited on the 16th and his date of hearing was set for the 22nd.

Judge Wood reports that in spite of summer crowds the traffic cases were relatively few in number during recent months, and that the ones reaching his court were rarely of serious nature.

"Macon" Visits Us On Practice Flight

Dropping airplanes and taking them back inside her long silver hull while on practice flight, the U. S. navy dirigible "Macon" flew down the Carmel coastline and doubled back up it Wednesday noon in traffic-stopping manner. Business was suspended, lunches got cold and necks became cramped as the town watched the most modern of air spectacles put on for its own private benefit.

Two of the five planes that live inside the super-balloon were lowered through the cross-shaped hatch beneath the body and swooped away to drift like gnats around the bulking craft and return slowly upward to contact the gripping mechanism and be raised once more through the floor of their lighter-than-air hangar.

For all of half of an hour the spectacle continued, after which the "Macon" disappeared to the northward and Carmel returned to its mundane pursuits.

Jury Trial Asked For By Buttermore

Charged with driving under the influence of liquor, Charles Buttermore, of Carmel, a highway laborer, appeared in city court before Judge George Wood in his preliminary hearing on Wednesday morning as a result of a collision with a car driven by James V. O'Toole, of San Francisco, son of the city attorney, on August 26. He was accompanied by attorney John Thomsen, of Monterey, and the court announced that the case would be dismissed and that a charge of reckless driving substituted.

In entering a plea of not guilty, the defendant asked for a jury trial. Informal court proceedings then went on with city policeman Earl Wermuth testifying that O'Toole is alleged to have said that he had been run into by a driver who had been drinking. Detention of Buttermore followed, with a trip to Dr. John Gray to determine

Carmel Friends Stirred By Krishnamurti's Visit

By THELMA B. MILLER has a mission—(this gets worse and worse) is to encourage people to think for themselves. And this is surely the objective of all honest teachers, rather than to administer predigested capsules of wisdom. I cannot pretend that I interviewed Krishnamurti. I did sit alone with him in a room overlooking the rugged highlands coastline, at Peter Pan Lodge. I asked him questions, feeling more gauche with each effort, while he sat and wriggled in the helpless embarrassment of a naturally shy person. The inadvertent use of the term mission—yet he would not say he Krishnamurti is the leader of no cult. He would probably disclaim even the mild term "teacher." His mission—yet he would not say he convulsion of acute discomfort. Reviewers must have done rather terrible things to this engaging young Hindu, with their insistence on conformity to type and acceptance of apt handles. He has spent a good many years living down the enthusiastic but injudicious titles which have been applied to him, ranging from messiah downward.

As a matter of fact, he is an excellent psychologist (there we go again) But if he is not the founder of a religion, not the preacher of a philosophic system, he must be SOMETHING.

Krishnamurti's stay in Carmel is providing a number of Carmel people, and among them some of the most eminent, with a profoundly stimulating intellectual experience. If poor material for an interviewer, he is a feast for the small conversational group. He refuses to expound, he has no magic formula for achieving health, wealth and happiness. He accepts responsibility for no man's fate, in the next world or in this. His only "method" is to insist on each individual thinking things through for himself. Perhaps that was why he did not make the situation easy for the interviewer. He let her solve her own problem, which was writing a story about him.

Nor is an easy solution for anything to be found in Krishnamurti's writings. The remarkable thing about his written as his spoken word, is that it gives a point of departure from which the auditor or the reader begins to have thoughts of his own.

Perhaps that is why it is so difficult to capture his particular essence. It is not what he himself is or says, it is the revolution he brings about in those who encounter him. His is not an overpoweringly spiritual presence. His eyes have not the far-off, slightly fey look of the so-called mystic. Like the psychologist, the only prescription he can give for successful living is, face facts and think things through.

Then which, humankind can be assigned no more difficult task. Even he does not say what those poor souls shall do who simply have not the equipment, the moron or high-grade defective, to use an extreme example. But of course plenty of people use that excuse who are capable enough, but too lazy to use the good grey matter they possess. "Too deep for me" is a facile rejection of the invitation to think that is voiced with a peculiar kind of pride, as if it conferred a distinction.

There is probably not a great deal that is new in Krishnamurti's teachings. Whether he has developed his ideas as a result of long study of older thinkers, or has arrived by an independent route is of little consequence; "irrelevant" as he himself would say of such teasing questions of the existence of a Diety, individual immortality, reincarnation. There is something universal about truth which evades the copyright of epoch, sect or individual. A truth is true in one age as in another, and outstanding thinkers of each generation discover it as if it were new and restate it without reference to musty books.

So it is no discredit to Krishnamurti to call him a good psychologist. If this young science has discovered anything valid about man and his struggle to live in harmony with his environment, it must be applicable regardless of the set of terms used to describe the process. And it is interesting to note that Krishnamurti's later writings, read side by side with any good modern text-book on psychology would be similar in context, if not in phraseology. With the great variety of human temperament and intellect, some people are more in harmony with the processes by which Krishnamurti teaches than they could be with the cold and pedantic jargon of the psychologist.

Krishnamurti came to Carmel at the urgent invitation of a group of people who wanted the inestimable privilege of talking with him intimately and informally. He is not solving problems for them. He is making provocative answers to leading questions and thereby evoking some of the best conversation this historic peninsula has heard in a blue moon.

Between whiles he is revising and expanding his latest manuscript, "Thoughts on Life," which will probably be the culmination of his work to date;—but not a goal, nor a stopping place, because to achieve is to stagnate, and to die.

A Dream House By The Sea

This is the last of the depression-bargains, of similar quality, in Carmel.

Original cost over $15,000. For quick sale, and on terms, $8,750.

Real Carmel charm of building makes a part of this home's good value. The unsurpassed situation creates steadiness of value. And size of land, construction of the house bring the property up to that of class A. As an investment it will bring 9% or 10% net at this time, more later.

The livingroom is high-ceiled, redwood walls, has handsome chalk-rock fireplace, many windows overlooking the sea, and French doors and windows looking out into a protected patio. Three bedrooms, four closets, bath, two storage rooms, garage, fencing, gardening all in.

A Carmel home of distinction. It should be bought by someone of real perception.

"Grand Show and Olio" Will Open Denny-Watrous Gallery

Celebrating its reopening after the recent move from Dolores street into the old Manzanita theatre building on San Carlos, the Denny-Watrous gallery will present a "grand show and olio" by members of the San Francisco hotel Drunkard company. The date is Sunday, October 7, and two shows will be given, from 7 o'clock to 9, and from 9 until 11.

Peggy Converse, whose vivacious charm in "There's a Tavern in the Town," and creation of the part of the Drunkard's wife have endeared her to audiences, will be here in person. With her will be Connie Clampett, who made her theatrical debut in the old Manzanita as a child, and is cast as "deranged Agnes" in "The Drunkard."

Peggy Converse and Connie Clampett together will give their new act, just introduced in San Francisco, "The Bathing Suit Act: By The Sea," in bathing suits of 1890.

Neely Edwards, Master of Ceremonies of the Drunkard Company, will introduce each act, including his own special "stunts," and conduct the singing of old songs, as when the "Drunkard" was played here last summer.

Rice and Cady, of vaudeville fame, have ready a number of "surprises," specially worked out for Carmel.

One of the hits of the evening to be the "Bicycle Built for Two" act, by Connie Clampett and Nesto Paiva. The bicycle is being loaned from Los Gatos and will come down by special car.

"Little Nell," will be enacted by Rice and Cady, Connie Clampett and Nesto Paiva.

Climax of the program will be the showing of the old silent film, "East Lynne," which probably was shown in the old Manzanita fifteen years ago.

To the tune of "Good Night Ladies," the seven o'clock audience will go out the new large side exits, to make room for the nine o'clock show.

Community Church Sunday Services

Next Sunday at the Carmel Community Church will bring the regular morning and evening services, starting at 9:45 with church school, and at 11 with service of worship. This will include a quartet composed of Madeline Curry, soprano; Gertrude Bardarson, alto; Andrew Sessink, tenor, and Miles Bain, bass. They will sing "Lord of Mercy," by Palestrina, and "Abide With Me," by W. B. Lincoln. Mr. Sessink will then sing a solo "The Living God," by Geoffrey O'Hara.

Theme of the services will be "Communing With God," and Rev. Melvin C. Dorsett will base his presentation on the interesting book by Honore Willies Morrow, "Splendor of God."

At 5 till 6:30 in the evening will be the Junior J-O-Y Club; from 6:30 till 8 the Intermediate J-O-Y Club, and 7 till 8 the High School Club at All Saint's Parish Hall.

Voices Wanted For November Operetta

Arthur Gunderson, composer and director of the Serra Pageant music, announces that a few more singers will be accepted for the Gilbert and Sullivan opera "Yeomen of the Guard," to be produced by the Monterey Peninsula Opera Association on November 8, 9, 10 and 11.

Rehearsals are held every Tuesday evening at the Sunset School, and applicants may give their names at that time to Mr. Gunderson.

Girl Saint Smiles On Fishing Fleet

Dominating the sabbath quiet of old Monterey's streets is the sound of music; a march, solemn and beautiful. There are a few banners at street corners; rain-bedraggled stars and stripes, and the colors of Italy. On the wharf is a bunting-draped speakers' stand—not the fishing wharf, but the other, off to the right. Cars are gathered at the end of the wharf, and stragglers begin to converge on the spot.

Down the street the procession comes; ruddy-faced men solemnly carrying banners, a little girl, brown-robed, and her attendants in white. Behind the band-men comes Santa Rosalia, not carried by her devotees, as she would have been years ago in Palermo, but riding on a truck embowered in flowers.

Sweet-faced Santa Rosalia, in her robe of blue and long fair hair garlanded with roses. She is surrounded by flesh-and-blood cherubim, little American school girls, yet with their Italian heritage plain in their rosy faces. They are in white, and they are winged—for this occasion at least.

In Palermo, where originated the festival of Santa Rosalia, her devotees would be trudging behind her image, borne aloft by stalwart arms. In Monterey there is a small band of marchers, but the procession is largely made up of automobiles. Copper-skinned fishermen, and their wives and children, foregathered for the blessing of their little boats. The little boats are there too, clustered about the wharf, their prows uplifted like innocent faces, as though they too knew that this lovely ceremony was invoked for their protection and success during the coming year.

The crowd about the speaker's stand, where the black-robed priests and the bishop in royal purple dominate the scene is informal and cheerful. Conversation does not cease while the chants are intoned, and cigarette smoke drifts over the massed heads. At the close of the blessing there is a movement to kneel, but the young priest on the platform quickly signs to his parishioners not to complete the ceremonial in the traditional fashion, for water is two inches deep in many places.

A young Italian priest makes a dramatic and impassioned address.

There is a familiar word or two—at least to grand opera addicts,—but it is all right anyway, because even the English speaking members of the throng—and the Orientals—gather from his gestures toward the girlish saint the meaning of his discourse. At the close he leads the listeners in ringing Vivas, and at that moment a great flock of interested gulls comes circling over Santa Rosalia. Blue and gold against a gray sky, and over blue and gold the wheeling birds.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Cockburn for a few days are John Lamberton of Honolulu and his son, Ian, who will enter Stanford University next week.

Parish Guild Plans Exhibit of Antiques

Public exhibition of a priceless collection of antiques loaned from numerous Carmel homes is being arranged by members of All Saints' Parish guild. The affair will be held at the parish house on Monte Verde near Ocean, Friday, October 6, from 2 o'clock to 8. Admission will be 25c, including afternoon tea.

Among the interesting objects already promised are a mandarin coat 500 years old, dating from the reign of Lee Hong Chang, paisley shawls, ancient daguerreotypes, miniatures, old coins dating from 1810, quilts over one hundred years old, embroideries, pottery both ancient and modern.

The exhibition is being arranged by Mrs. Ellen Rose, guild president, assisted by the following: Mrs. John W. Dickinson, committee chairman; Mr. and Mrs. A. Wheldon, Mrs. Vera Peck Millis, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Chinn, Mrs. G. W. Reamer, Mrs. Cooper Anderson, Mrs. F. W. Ten Winkel, Mrs. Samuel Barling, Mrs. Louise C. Ralston, Miss Marjorie Pegrim, Mrs. A. McIntyre and Mrs. Calvert Meade.

"Calamity Corner" Has Traffic Signs

Stop signs have at last been installed at Calamity Corner, the infamous intersection at 7th and Carmelo where poor visibility owing to hedges and trees has brought on many automobile collisions. Fortunately only one of these sent people to the hospital, but many a garage bill and insurance claim has resulted from incautious driving at the point.

Carmel has many of these blind intersections, but none with the

Rain Is Sign That Tourists Are Gone

A very right and proper rain of nearly a quarter inch wet Carmel over the weekend and gave the natives an infallible sign that the summer tourist season is actually over. With the departure of the last tripper there is invariable a rain storm, and following this is the famous beach picnic where Carmelites gather to sing paens of freedom.

Another valuable feature was that chances for forest and grass fires are for the first time lessened in this year of unusual dryness. Already this season's rainfall average is six times what it was last year at the same date, and according to old timers it indicates a wet winter.

Early try-outs of roofs and walls was a helpful factor of the storm. Pans and cloths will take care of the minor leaks, while rooms that have real sky-holes can be locked up until the wet period is over. People with grand pianos once more can boast of a dry place to sleep, moving the instruments under the driest part of the roof and making up a bed on top of them.

The figures on rainfall for Carmel shows .23 of an inch for this year against .07 of an inch for last year.

Figures at Carmel Valley are this year .12 of an inch.

Halletts Grocery Will Open Saturday

Hallett's Cash Grocery, located two doors North of the old Post-office on Dolores street, opens tomorrow as a low priced home-owned store.

Mr. Hallett, proprietor has been in the grocery business for many years, and recently has been with the New Monterey store of a large grocery chain.

Hallett is well-known in Carmel, having lived here for the past five years. He is ambitious, anxious to please, and in opening his new store he promises the utmost in service, value, and reliability. Opening specials are advertised elsewhere in this issue of the Pine Cone.

The Dolores Street location was chosen because, Dolores street is an established business street with exceptional conveniences, good parking facilities, and is convenient to the residential section of Carmel.

Pistol Club Works On Outdoor Range

Target shooting at the outdoor Hatton Field range of the Carmel Pistol Club has been improved through work on the grounds, giving much more area behind the pits and better storage facilities in the small building nearby. Safety has been increased by building a small barrier with a gate so that persons may not accidentally walk into the line of fire.

The indoor range in the basement of the Murphy Building will be kept for firing during wet weather, and has already proved its worth in the year since it was installed in conformity with national regulations.

Short Play Planned For Court of Honor

By means of a short two-act play, the Boy Scout Court of Honor program of Friday, October 12 will be given unusual interest, as this is the first time the local scout troop committee has sponsored such an event. The play's first act will portray the daily activities of a scout camp by means of typical incidents. The second act will stress citizenship, appreciation and friendship.

Following the play, awards and badges of honor will be presented to scouts having earned them. Troops will be present from Pacific Grove, Monterey and Seaside, as well as local scouts, and all others who care to attend.

Scout Troop No. 39 is active again with the opening of school. Herman Crossman, chairman of the scout board, has attended a number of the meetings. The troop is new and not yet large, but additional enrollments are expected.

Council Meeting Next Wednesday

Regular monthly meeting of the city council will take place next Wednesday evening in the city hall, but little other than routine business will be undertaken owing to absence of Mayor James Thoburn on a vacation. This means that such matters as development in the new city hall project, peninsula airport and the like will await special call or another regular session.

Edward G. Kuster is spending several days at Hollywood Plaza hotel, Hollywood.

To Women WHO HATE SEWING

IT should be second nature to have the best possible kind of lighting in the home. Where women sew—and what woman does not have some darning or mending to do?—good light should aid her work. If the light she works by is insufficient, eyes are sure to complain, nervous headaches begin and the hated sewing is put aside.

Eye specialists are constantly warning us to conserve our eyesight and nervous systems. Research shows that 23% of young people under 20 years, 39% under 30 years, and 75% over 50 years of age are victims of defective vision. Eye specialists recognize too, the value of a Sight Meter as a scientific means of testing lighting conditions.

For expert assistance in improving your home lighting, see your local electric dealer, or for an accurate check-up on your lighting with the Sight Meter ask for our free Home Lighting Survey. There is no cost or obligation for this new service.

Last Rites For Coming Bugle Corps Set for Oct. 6

Music, low, sweet and solemn. The air is heavy with the perfume of precious flowers. White flowers. Flowers that kindle in us the thoughts of death and the pains of everlasting parting. Now and then the silence is broken by a half-choked sob, a softly breathed sigh. Here and there is the glint of a half hidden tear.

"Ashes to Ashes. Dust to Dust." A shudder passes through the assemblage. A nervous shifting of feet. A sudden, involuntary relaxing of muscles held tense. And "No! Don't ever dare." And laughter, shrill and defiant, breaks the spell.

What is it? 'Tis the burial of the Corning Drum and Bugle corps. The outfit that tied with Monterey for First Place at the State Convention at San Francisco last August. The burial of a gallant contender for championship honors will be staged at the Manzanita Club, October Sixth, by Carmel Post No. 512, American Legion. An evening's entertainment will be provided, the proceeds of which will go to the "On TO MIAMI FUND" of the Monterey Drum and Bugle Corps. All Legionnaires are invited to assist at the obsequies and should make contact with anyone of the following named at once to secure their cards of admission. Jimmy Regan, Major Landers, Captain Pat Hudgins, Commander Peterson, Gabe Burnett, Floyd Mangrum and Fred McIndoi.

Carmel has just had an election, and it has also just had a play called "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife." Both advertised widely, including the spare tires of automobiles. One remarkable combination of the two was discovered when the car ahead apparently proclaimed "Vote For a Dumb Wife for Coroner." This was somewhat improved, but still added, when smaller letters appeared upon drawing closer, and made it read, "Vote For The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife for Coroner."

Business Meeting For Legion Monday

Carmel American Legion Post No. 512 will hold a regular business meeting on Monday, October 1, at 8 p. m., in Carmel Legion Hall at Dolores and 8th streets.

The clubhouse and its facilities will be open at that time to all Legionnaires. Veterans contemplating joining the Carmel Post are reminded that membership in the charter roll will close at the second regular meeting on November 5. Dues and application must be in the hands of the adjutant not later than that date to insure being on the premier list.

Carmel Represented At Firemen's Assn.

Paul Mercurio was delegate from the Carmel Fire Department to the California State Firemen's Association convention held at Santa Cruz during four days of last week, and was again elected to the directorate of the group.

The body moved to recommend that all passenger ships carry at least one expert firefighter in view of the recent Morro Castle holocaust, and also that Fourth of July fireworks be sold only to city and county officials so that fire from this source may be reduced to a minimum.

Paul Funchess, alternate delegate, and Robert Leidig, chief of the Carmel department, as well as many other members of the force attended some of the sessions, and the town was well represented at the Big Trees picnic put on by the Santa Cruz department.

Additional Art Class At School

Response to the adult class in general art having been greater than anticipated, an extra evening class has been created for this course. The class under Mrs. Charlotte Morgan, instructor, will meet both Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7:30 at Sunset school. Additional enrollments will be received.

Official List Of Town Now Complete

Adding to last week's official family of Carmel, City Attorney Argyll Campbell and Assessor of the Sanitary Board Bernard Rowntree will probably complete the list. They were omitted through oversight.

Mayor and Mrs. James H. Thornburn have left on a vacation of two weeks to be spent on their Sonora ranch.

INTRODUCING THE NEW EDITOR By Perry Newberry

When finally I made up my mind that it wasn't fair to Carmel or to the Pine Cone to continue editing the paper in a bathrobe and slippers without even getting an occasional peek at the village, I began looking around for a man to take on my duties and my interest in the paper. I wouldn't sell to anybody who came along. I had directed the policies of the Pine Cone too many years to give it over casually. I had to know whether the new man would look upon Carmel through spectacles of the same tint as mine, or see something entirely different.

Ross C. Miller is coming to Carmel to live and edit the Pine Cone because Carmel is what it is, and he and his wife have been here often enough and long enough to know what that means. He isn't anxious to build the village into a city, or to correct its distinctive irregularities of type. He would rather buy a new spring for his car now and then than to have concrete streets through the town, and he will weep with Saidee Van Brower when a tree comes down. If I am not very much mistaken, he will be stronger for "Carmel different" than I have been.

Miller is a newspaper man. You may have noticed that President Roosevelt is filling many positions in the New Deal with newspaper men. One reason is that a newspaper man's education doesn't provide for alibis. There is no time in a newspaper office to listen to excuses. The men are taught to bring home the bacon. Another reason is that newspaper men do not fall into ruts, and carry on along conventional lines. A New Deal, based upon an entire lack of precedents, has to be handled by men who don't need a trail to get through the woods. Ross Miller can not only understand a Carmel that is out of the ruts, going its own way through unexplored territory, but he can help steer the village without heading it into conventional pathways.

He is a newspaper man, has been one for most of his life; and his wife, Thelma Miller, is a newspaper man. They won't be giving you alibis when you want the bacon. They won't be advocating for Carmel the things which they advocated, and which were quite proper, for Bakersfield. They'll disappoint some people who want chambers of commerce, and city halls, and free delivery of mail, and all such things for Carmel, very likely. But to all of you who recognize the loveliness and, yes,

RACE

In the mists of evening in the distances of night
 Through the dawns of morning to the songs of sun
 Fleetly I run unclad and touch earth
 With glad feet bare, with arms outflung
 And face upturned to the sky. Through the mists
 Of evening in the distances of night
 Ever I run to the dawns of morning and the songs of light.

—Fanita Lanier

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA

White beach gleaming sand dunes,
 Surf at the water's edge,
 Gray cliffs where the sea foam
 Boils on a rocky ledge.

Dark pines and the mountains,
 Their snow caps in the mist,
 Poppies and blue lupin
 A brilliant sun has kissed.

Roadways, flower bordered,
 Lie golden in the sun,
 Then the graying twilight,
 And so the day is done.

Then comes radiant starlight
 To Carmel-by-the-Sea,
 Moonlights silver magic
 And night's veiled mystery.

—Crea W. Hobart.

MUTED

How can I sing when the sweet words beat
 In an ecstasy of pain,
 While they go racing on silver feet,
 Like sudden showers of rain?

Silenced am I by beauty's ways,
 Holding enraptured breath—
 The golden wonder of night, of days,
 Of love, of life, and death.

—Clara Edmunds-Hemingway.

the value of a distinctive and artistic village, I recommend both the new editor, Ross C. Miller, and his wife and co-labor on the paper, Thelma B. Miller.

OUR POLICY

We give you our pledge, Perry Newberry, to stand shoulder to shoulder with you against the tide of the commonplace which threatens Carmel. We are newcomers here. We came to this village because of all the places that we have seen, it offered a haven of the spirit, as well as a place in which to earn bread and butter and pay rent. There are "live" towns in plenty, "up and coming burgs" without number. We have left them behind we hope forever, in preference of a secluded community of individualists who have the courage to be different. We are not boosters for a bigger and better Carmel, and we never will be. We do not want "improvements," save such improvements as are worked imperceptibly upon the human spirit by the rolling surf at our front dooryard, the blue wall of mountains beyond the garden gate, the friendly shelter of native trees, and the little wild creatures who play in their branches.

We left behind us a city of fine wide paved streets and banality and free mail delivery and sidewalks and a wide awake Chamber of Commerce and plenty of luncheon clubs. Our place is vacant there for any misplaced Carmel citizen who yearns for the things which we have learned to count of little value. The wistful gaze of scores of our less fortunate friends follow us, folks, like us, who have dreams of living in the most beautiful and distinctive village on the Pacific Coast. We have told them, too, that we will do our part to keep Carmel unspoiled until they can join us here.

Let the "progressive" element think twice before they seek to make of this place another Pismo or Santa Monica. "Boosters" create, but they likewise destroy. Let them think, too, of the dollars-and-cents side of it, if they otherwise miss the point. People flock here from the cities and pay high rents and patronize the shops not just because of the climate. There are plenty of beach resorts. They are in search of the old Carmel, about which a beautiful tradition is woven. Destroy the evanescent charm of this different village, and you will have killed the goose that lays the golden eggs.

—THE MILLERS.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

PRINCE GEORGE, of England, which a select number of local swing with a form that professional who has been much in the lights were invited. The prince, a tall, quiet chap, listened to introductory speeches with his eyes glued on his left hand, and when it seemed none too happy at being came his turn to reply his tanned face colored a shade deeper. His golf game over the club course was better in the woods than prince remained until after the recall the stag luncheon for George with the woods, and a photograph last shoreboat had left. He asked and his fellow officers at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club, to lection shows him at the finish of a has it that the reply was "Go down to the wharf and blow your whistle!"

A whistle, it seems, was part of every officer's personal equipment.

After leaving Monterey the magic attraction of Hollywood was felt as far north as Santa Barbara. The prince, it is said, got in with a crowd that had driven up from the cinema city and he drove back down with them, to be severely lectured when he rejoined the ship some hours afterward somewhere in southern California.

Mrs. Ella S. Goddard, who was the qualified representative at the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Equitable Life Insurance company, held in New York, has returned to her home in Carmel. While east, Mrs. Goddard enjoyed a motor trip to New England, visited the World's Fair and was entertained by relatives in Indiana, Illinois and Denver.

Newcomers to Carmel who are expecting to make this their permanent home are Mrs. Pearson Menoher, formerly of Los Angeles, her son Pearson and her daughter Nancy. The young people are attending Monterey Union High school. The family is residing on South Camino Real.

President

Miss Frances Bell Benson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Benson of Hatton Fields, became the bride of Herbert McGuckin Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The service was read by Rev. Ernest J. Bradley at St. John's Chapel in Del Monte. Attending the couple were the bride's sister, Mrs. Harry Hilbert, and Bert McCuison. Following a wedding trip to Southern California, Mr. and Mrs. McGuckin will make their home in Carmel, where both attended school before graduation from Monterey Union High school.

Mrs. V. C. Johnson and Mrs. John McDonald of Bakersfield have been recent guests of Mrs. Nelle Bradley.

Mrs. Adele Wainwright is spending a month in Los Angeles and Santa Barbara as the guest of Col. and Mrs. H. Bull.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Greenwald of San Jose, with numerous friends of Carmel, have taken Birdseye cottage on Carmelo for an indefinite stay.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Abernethy have returned to their home here after a ten-day trip as far south as Los Angeles. In Santa Barbara they were guests of Mr. Abernethy's mother, Mrs. Edward Abernethy.

William Swain has returned to Carmel after some years in the east and in southern California, and will reside in his Carmel Woods home, named The Monastery, there to resume his philosophical studies.

Evans W. Acheson, connected for the last seven years with the Carmel Western Union, has left for permanent assignment with the Sebastapol office of that organization.

Occupying their cottage in Carmel Woods for several days are Mrs. Ewell and her daughter, Miss Bernice Ewell of Stanford.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Laumeister are enjoying a two or three weeks' motor tour of the country east of the Sierra Nevada, including Owens Valley and other resorts.

Accompanied by his bride, Clinton J. Warren, who made many friends here during his visit of a month with Dave Davis on North Dolores this summer, was again a guest of Mr. Davis for several days recently. The wedding of Mr. Warren to Miss Louise Heidelberg of San Diego followed his stay here. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Warren went by boat to Vancouver, motored down the coast, stopped here, then proceeded south where they will build a country home near San Diego.

Howard Neikirk of San Francisco is the guest for several days of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Neikirk.

After spending the summer in Carmel, Miss Ellen Brown and Miss Jessie Brown have returned to their home in Palo Alto.

Stuart Marble spent last weekend visiting friends in San Jose.

Miss Margaret E. White has returned to Carmel after a rest of several weeks at Mt. Hermon, near Santa Cruz. She is once again at her post in the Community Exchange.

Because his mother, Mrs. Waldon T. Winslow, lives in Carmel, Kenelm Tracy Winslow, of Texas, chose this village for the setting of his marriage to Miss Dorothea Katz of South Bend, Indiana. To make a cross-continental tour of the event, Mr. and Mrs. Winslow departed after the ceremony for their new home in Birmingham, Alabama, where Mr. Winslow will be in business.

The ceremony was performed at the Community Church, Friday morning, September 21, at 11 o'clock, by Rev. Melvin C. Dorsett. Attendants were Mrs. Luis Wolter, sister of the bridegroom, as matron-of-honor, and Mr. Wolter as groomsmen.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Brown and their family of Glendale have arrived in Carmel to stay for the month of October. They have taken the Kneass house at Camino Real and Fourth.

Miss Jane Ransome has just completed a motor journey from her home to Denver in July and have since New Jersey home to Carmel. Accompanied by her daughter and a friend, she will remain here for about six months.

Planning to enjoy the delightful fall and winter weekends in Carmel, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Schappell of Los Gatos has taken the Van Huetten place on Dolores for the season.

Major and Mrs. W. B. Kneass are expected to return to their home here next week. They motor-

A Picture No Carmel Artist Could Paint

A Carmel artist drowsed at his easel. As he nodded, he heard a voice saying, "Artist, paint me a picture of Carmel of the future—a Carmel fostered by my power and for my benefit. I will pay liberally. My name is Commercialism."

Under hypnosis of the voice, and having plenty of use for the money, the artist stretched a new canvas and started work on a birdseye view of this quiet seaside village in its green forest as it might appear to sky travellers a few years hence after high pressure development

The trees? There are no trees in the middle of town, huddled together as if for protection against towering buildings all around, and especially against the replica of the Capitol at Washington, identified as the city hall. Particularly threatening is the hose-drying tower of the fire house portion of the municipal building.

As far as the eye can reach are treeless, straight streets along which whiz motor bullets unhindered by the winding roads of the old days, and under them are subways which conduct humans fearful of their bones. Automatic street signals control these arteries of traffic, and beating the lights is an established custom despite the fleet of motorcycle officers supervising the electric crossing-cops. The local death average of drivers and pedestrians runs pleasingly high—for the undertakers.

Smooth cement sidewalks lead to every door, and glistening chromium numbers adorn every porch so that the army of postal deliverymen may dash up and toot whistles announcing arrival of the mail, now received at the central office, located a mile from town, six times a day except holidays and Sundays.

Nothing is lacking to make Carmel a right little, tight little standard town that gives joyous twitters to the modern-minded, to the stay-at-homes and to the commercial men. No bark of dog nor crow of rooster disturbs the serene mechanism of the scene; the only sounds are howl of motor horns and blare of advertising broadcasts from low-flying blimps. Even the surf is unheard.

If it were night all those outstretching Neon signs would be in full glory of red and green and blue proclaiming products standardized the world over, earmarking Carmel as one of ten thousand little cities turned out of the same mold and the mold still unbroken.

At the airplane landing field on top of the downtown chamber of commerce roof is a mob of people welcoming some distinguished visitor. The newcomer is in reality an old time writer returning to relive the care-free days of early Carmel. Already he has a puzzled look and is glancing fearfully around at the newness, the bigness and the lack of familiar faces. So long has it been since the town has seen a creative worker in these days of business, after devotees of the seven arts had fled to happier, simpler fields, that it has been declared a holiday so that the children may see what a writer is like.

The beach is black with people and concession stands, and a long pleasure pier extends out far beyond the kelp beds. A swimming pool has hundreds of patrons splashing about and telling one another how it reminds them of San Francisco, while farther up the beach is the new recreation stadium where a professional football team is giving the inhabitants something to take their minds off the boredom of city life.

The artist's hand falters in the few last strokes, and a voice behind him rumbles, "Go ahead. That's just the way I want it!"

Throwing away brush, tearing up canvas and knocking over easel, the artist drives his customer out the door and down the path, throwing the wreckage of his art after him. . . .

And then he rubs his eye and shudders at the very thought of such a terrible thing happening, and goes back to his picture that sleep has interrupted.

Quilt Display At Union High School

Antique and modern hand-made quilts will be on display at the Monterey Union High School under auspices of the High School under Teachers Association tomorrow afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock. Admission will be 20c, and this will include tea to be served by ladies of the Association.

Entrance to the cafeteria room where the event will take place may be had by taking the road leading to the rear of the school, the front way being blocked for the football game which will take place during the afternoon.

Many Carmelians have loaned quilts for the exhibit, and it is said that heirlooms dating back to early last century will be on view.
